CAPT. CURLEY LAMBEAU

Halfback

Lambeau is starting his eleventh year as pilot of the Packer team. He has led the Green Bay Packers to the top ranks of the professional football league, and this year with a stellar aggregation under his tutelage, his team is expected to make another strong bid for the national championship. Curley broke into the football spotlight at East High, and achieved fame later at Notre Dame. His fight, leadership and ability to lug the pigskin makes him the most important cog in the Packer machine.

VERNE LEWELLEN
Halfback

The political halfback. That's Verne Lewellen, one of the Packer football aces, who is starting his sixth year with the Green Bay eleven. Lew mixes his politics and football very successfully as is indicated by his record. He was elected district attorney of Brown County last fall, and in the wake of this election, it was announced that he was chosen on the all-professional team for the third consecutive year. Lewellen, who hails from Nebraska University, is in a class by himself as far as punting is concerned. When he starts running with the ball, he usually goes some place too.

DICK O'DONNELL
End

Dick is one of the veterans in the Packer line-up. Ever since the scrappy end came here several years ago, he has been playing a sterling brand of football. He is big, shifty and fast and can play with the best wingmen. Although many rate him as the best defensive end in pro football, there are many who believe he is equally as good on offense. He gets down under punts in a hurry, nabs passes in big league style and mows down the defensive linemen when an off tackle smash is underway.

JOHNNY BLOOD
Halfback

The Packer management figures that it made a "ten strike" when it landed Blood, a versatile backfielder who can play with the best of them. He was with the Pottsville Maroons last year, and Packer football fans still remember how he and Tony La Tone ran rampant over the Big Bay Blues a year ago. He can play any position in the backfield, and after getting his assignment, he plays his post like nobody's business. He started his pro football with the Duluth Eskimos and faced the Packers several times, always giving them plenty of trouble.

BILLY YOUNG

Guard

Another newcomer in the Packer ranks this year is Billy Young, a husky guard who finished his third year of collegiate football last fall at Ohio State. The big fellow cut loose with a sterling brand of ball during his collegiate days and the Packer authorities expect him to continue that same pace in the pro game. He is big, aggressive and a fast charger and should not find much trouble jumping from the college game to the post graduate class. He left an enviable record behind him at Ohio State.

"RED" DUNN

Quarterback

The red headed quarterback's appearance in the Packer line-up for the third successive year is just another gesture to satisfy the local football clientele. The former Marquette University star is a clever signal caller, a good ball carrier and looks mighty well on the front end of forward passes. He made his debut in professional circles with the Milwaukee Badgers, and then spent two seasons with the Chicago Cardinals with whom he showed plenty of class.

HURDIS McCRARY

Fullback

This is McCrary's first season with the Packers. He comes here from the University of Georgia where he gained prominence on the collegiate gridiron. According to Jimmy Crowley, "Mac" is one of the greatest fullbacks he ever saw in action. The Georgian is a good kicker and first class aerial attack performer. He gained all-American recognition at fullback in 1927 and 1928. "Mac" is a ten second man on the track.

BILL KERN

Tackle

Kern is making his debut in pro football this season, but those who watched his spectacular career at Pittsburg University are confident that he will not find any trouble in the post graduate game. He played three years with Pittsburg and in his senior year he was acclaimed one of the best tackles in the East. California sport critics gave Kern considerable space in their stories dealing with the Pittsburg-Stanford game at the Tournament of Roses, Pasadena, June 2, 1928. Last year he coached at his Alma Mater.

"JUG" EARPE

Tackle and Center

"Jug" Earpe, next to Capt. Lambeau is the oldest player in the point of service on the Packer team. He came here from the Rock Island Independents in 1922 and has been going strong ever since. Earpe played his collegiate football at Monmouth college. "Jug" is a great team worker and he is always in there giving his best to the gold and blue.

BO MOLEND A
Fullback

Molenda, who in his collegiate days teamed with Benny Friedman at Michigan, will again wear a Packer uniform this year after playing a few games with the Bays during the latter part of the last season. The Michigan backfielder earned quite a reputation as a grinder in his collegiate days, and after graduation the New York Yankees were successful in getting him to put his name on the dotted line. He starred for a season and a half with the Gothamites and then Capt. Lambeau got him to don a Packer uniform.

LAVVIE DILWEG

End

Dilweg finished his second year with the Packers when the curtain was drawn on the season last year, and at the end of both campaigns he was selected on the all professional team. Opposing quarterback are strategic when they run their plays away from Lavvie. That's how the former Marquette University flash works on defense. On offense he can open holes with the best of them, and when a forward pass is scheduled, he will get it if anyone can. Another big year is expected from Dilweg.

WHITEY WOODIN

Guard

If football wasn't rough, Woodin would not don the togs. The harder the game the better Woodin likes it. That is why he is always in the thick of the fight when the Packers are engaging the Chicago Bears or some other team of that caliber. Whitey played his college football at Marquette University, and after getting off to a good start in the professional game with the Racine Legion team, he came to Green Bay six years ago. He is expected to come through with another good year of football in the present campaign.

DON HILL

Halfback

Hill is one of the Packer newcomers this season. For three years the sport scribes on the West coast were singing the praises of this fleet footed halfback who was burning up the gridiron with Stanford University. Capt. Lambeau investigated and found the critics' verbal bouquets were warranted, and began dickering with the Stanford halfback shortly after graduation. After eliminating considerable competition, the Packer pilot managed to get the California halfback's name on a Packer contract.

BERNARD DARLING

Center

"Boob" donned a Packer uniform for the first time in 1927, and although he did not see much service that season, Capt. Lambeau called upon him more frequently last year and he always gave a good account of himself. He was especially dangerous in the Providence game, and the last Bear tussle at Chicago last December. Darling did quite a bit of traveling before finishing his collegiate car. The Oshkosh product started at Wisconsin, switched to Ripon and then wound up in a blaze of glory at Beloit.

EDDIE KOTAL
Halfback

Kotal is beginning his fifth year in a Packer uniform, and it is certain that the fans are more than glad to see him back. The little Lawrence halfback has developed into one of the best toters in the professional league, and has figured prominently in many of the Packer football successes. After having the best season of his career last year, he was selected on the second all pro team. Although Kotal is good in every department of the game, he is especially spectacular on the receiving end of a forward pass and he carries the ball with the best of them.

CARL LIDBERG
Fullback

Lidberg's return to the Packers after an absence of two years more than meets the approval of the football colony here for the former Minnesota fullback won his way into the hearts of the fans here by his superb playing two years ago. It did not matter who the opposition was as Lidberg punched his way through all the lines with equal facility. After starring at Minnesota for three years, the Gopher star remained idle a year and then joined the Packers for one season. He has been assistant coach at Colgate for the past two seasons.

JIM BOWDOIN

Guard

Bowdoin is beginning his second season with the Packers, and although he played good ball last year, he is expected to come through with a better brand this season. The big guard is a hard worker and is always in the thick of the fight. His stellar work in the forward wall last season played an important part in many Packer games. Down Alabama way, where Bowdoin played his collegiate football, they are still talking about the way he cavorted for his Alma Mater. For three years he was one of the main cogs in the Alabama squad.

Guard

Michaleske was graduated from Penn State after playing three years of sparkling football in collegiate circles. He is rated as one of the best guards that ever played at the Pennsy school, and won all-American recognition in his senior year. After tucking his sheepskin under his arm, he joined the New York Yankees. For two years he was selected on the all-pro team. He can play guard, tackle or center and due to his versatility he should be one of the most valuable linemen in the Packer fold.

IVAN CAHOON

Tackle

Cahoon who is called "Tiny" because he just isn't that way, is starting his fourth year with the Packers. When he is holding down his tackle post, the opposing backs find considerable trouble. Tiny played high school football at Baraboo, Wis. After playing one year at Montana, he took up his studies at Gonzaga University where he earned quite a reputation as a griddler. He joined the Packers after finishing school, and it did not take him long to come to the front in the professional game. Besides playing with the Packers, he is coaching at West De Pere High.

Ashmore is starting his second year with the Packers. The husky tackle who cut loose with a good brand of football with the Bays last season, played his college football at Gonzaga University, which incidently is also Tiny Cahoon's Alma Mater. After going through the hat and gown performance, Ashmore joined the Milwaukee Badgers with whom he played two seasons. CLAUDE PERRY
Tackle

Although the former Alabama star played good ball his first year with the Packers, it was not until last fall that he developed into one of the best tackles in the pro wheel. With three seasons of collegiate football at Alabama behind him, augmented by two years experience with the Big Bay Blues, he is expected to cut loose with his best brand of pigskin chasing this fall. Although Perry is very effective on offense, his defensive play is especially spectacular. Frequently he dumps the opposing backs before they get started.
