CAPT. DANIEL R. TOPPING, U.S.M.C.
Progressive Owner of Tigers

Thanks—and Come Again!

WITH this game, the 1944 home schedule of the Brooklyn football club is finished. The Tigers have three more contests, but all are to be played on foreign fields.

The Tigers have not been as successful, in the scores, as the management and the gridiron fans of Brooklyn expected. But the attendance has been fine.

Despite the Tigers' lack of success, more than 15,000 persons attended last Sunday's meeting with the Philadelphia Eagles. It was a turnout worthy of a more successful outfit.

The attendance at Ebbets Field has indicated to the management that the fans appreciate the situation, and are willing to make allowances for the wartime manpower handicaps which have harassed the Tigers.

However, the job of building is going to be continued. In 1945, Brooklyn should have a football representation truly worthy of the support of its enthusiasts.

And so, thanks for coming—and please return! The National League is heading for things tremendous. After the war, there will be a boom in all sports, and especially in professional football. It simply cannot miss because it is a thoroughly American game, catering to the American tempo, the complete Autumn complement of major league baseball.

Forgive the Brooklyn club for its defeats. They were not produced by casual approach to the myriad problems presented. The owner, the management did all they could to give Brooklyn a worth-while outfit. They succeeded in developing a fighting football team. In aggressiveness and spirit, the Tigers yield to no other club in the National League.

Where Skill really Counts . . .

It takes more than a football suit to make a star half-back . . . and it takes more than a distilling plant to make a truly great whiskey like Seagram's 7 Crown.

Yes . . . and it takes even more than treasured reserves of many different fine whiskeys . . . even more than ample stocks of genuine neutral grain spirits. Most of all, it takes skill, and craftsmanship, and experience, to achieve the exquisite flavor and bouquet and mellow lightness of Seagram's 7 Crown to keep its rare excellence unchanged in wartime.

Today, as always, Seagram's 7 Crown is one of the world's great whiskeys . . . every drop 100% pre-war quality. True, it's scarcer now than usual . . . but there's still enough for you to enjoy in moderation. Sip it slowly . . . savor its excellence . . . and be thankful that Seagram's 7 Crown is still to be had!

1944 Season Marks 25 Years of National League Football

THIS season marks the quarter centennial of the National League. It went into operation just 25 years ago, and points with pride to great achievements all through its circuit. To these will be added still greater accomplishments just as soon as the war is over.

It was on September 16, 1920, at Canton, Ohio, that the National League was formed. Jim Thorpe, the Sac and Fox Indian marvel, had summoned 16 men to the session.

At first these sixteen called it the American Professional Football Association. It was a sickly youngster. But in 1925 a vitamin named Red Grange cured its publicity rickets. Then the depression, ironically, gave it a chance to make some money. By the time it became of age in 1940, this struggling orphan which once peddled franchises at $100 apiece was a four million dollar organization.

Today professional football as played in the National League is accepted as a major league sport. Its rise to pre-eminence was not quite as simple as that, however. There were long years of struggle against an uninformed public opinion. The first headline the game ever got appeared in the Chicago Herald and Examiner on January 30, 1922. It read: "Stagg Says Conference Will Break Professional Football Menace."

The story of the National League is, however, not so much this series of glorified milestones as it is a story of unusual personalities. Many before them had tried to make something of the idea conceived by those Latrobe, Pa., Y.M.C.A. boys and their Jeanette neighbors who met in the first professional football game on Tuesday, August 31, 1895.

Connie Mack had put a team into Philadelphia in 1902, with Christy Mathewson and Rube Waddell on his roster, and claimed the "championship of the United States." Teams had sprung up throughout Pennsylvania and New York. For a time the game thrived sufficiently on neighborhood rivalry to reach old Madison Square Garden for indoor contests between national champion claimants of the early 1900's.

Then Ohio, erroneously called the "cradle of professional football," moved into the picture with its Canton Bulldogs, Massillon Tigers, Akron Indians and the six Nesser brothers, a whole family of gridiron phenoms, from Columbus.

George Halas and Curly Lambeau came along in 1920. Lambeau and Halas were a couple of young prospectors who could take their football in the raw, but could not leave it, nor understand how anyone else could. They placed the game on a full time basis with daily practice. Together with the late Joe F. Carr, who served as the league's president for 19 years, they wrought order out of chaos.

Five years later Tim Mara organized the Giants, and introduced professional football to New York. After Mara came George P. Marshall, who installed his first team in Boston, and after five years removed his Redskins to Washington where the club surged to tremendous prosperity.

Technically, the National League's outstanding contributions to the game include the man-in-motion offense, popularly known as the T formation (originated and perfected by Halas and his Chicago Bears) and the most extensive scientific survey ever made of the game. Out of this study, during which 300,000 stop watch readings were analyzed and page after page of statistics were averaged, came a set of rules which in recent months has moved college coaches to virtual revolt against their own rule makers.

The future development of professional football will continue in the National League. National League owners have endured the hazards of pioneer promotion to establish their teams and inculcate interest in the advanced character of football. This has been a long and arduous and expensive development, and their success may not be readily duplicated by the ambitious and venturesome who believe that this success may be garnered without intensive and costly cultivation.

That the National League will grow by adding new clubs in football conscious cities is a natural expectation. The League owners have practised caution in adding new cities to their League and believe that this prudence has been wise. Boston is expected to be one of the more successful National League cities now that it has again placed a team in League ranks.

Frank Bruiser Kinard Gets Citation from Grid Fans

BRUISER KINARD

THIS could be called Frank Kinard Day at Ebets Field. In fact, why not let it go at that? The years come and the years go, but this big tackle who came into the National League from Mississippi, keeps going along without showing any signs of wear, or the toll of the seasons. This is Kinard's seventh campaign in the pro ranks.

Kinard was picked on the all-National League team for 1943 by the Associated Press. It named Don Hutson, Green Bay, and Eddie Rucinski, Cardinals, at the ends; Kinard and Al Blozis, Giants, for the tackles; Dick Farman, Redskins, and Doc Dan Fortman, Bears, at the guards;

Clyde Turner, Bears, at Center, and Sid Luckman, Bears, Sam Baugh, Redskins, Harry Clark, Bears, and Tony Canadeo, Packers, in the backfield.

In 1941, Kinard was on the official National League pick. He already had achieved the all-team in 1940.

Kinard has about everything that is needed for line achievement in professional football. Big and strong, aggressive and a great team man, Kinard has been superlative. A cheer for the Bruiser, as the Tigers quit Brooklyn for the season.

Tigers, Well-named, Play Aggressive Type of Game

THE Tigers are sorry to quit Brooklyn for the season after today's game. The management hopes that in 1945 it will be possible to arrange a longer Brooklyn schedule, and keep the club at home until a much later date.

As the Tigers say goodbye for the season, they carry with them a citation from the customers as a hard-fighting, aggressive, never-say-die outfit. In renaming the old Dodgers the 1944 Tigers, the management did a good job.

While the Brooklyn team did not win in its first appearance under the associate coaches Al Kubale and Frank Bridges, the management is confident that the club is on the right track and that big things may be expected in the future.

NO MORE HOME GAMES FOR BROOKLYN CLUB

With this afternoon's contest, the Tigers complete their home schedule at Ebbets Field. They will play in Boston next Sunday, in New York on November 26, and in Philadelphia on December 3.

The contest at the Polo Grounds will afford a final chance to see the Brooklyn team in action in this vicinity this season.

By the time the Tigers arrive at the Polo Grounds, it is hoped by the Brooklyn management that they will be in a position to make up for their early season setback by the New York club.

Tigers Invade Polo Grounds to Battle Giants Nov. 26

CLARENCE "PUG" MANDERS

THOUGH the Tigers today finish their schedule at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn football fans will get another chance to see them in action. The Bengals will play the Giants at the Polo Grounds on Sunday, November 26, and promise Steve Owen's lads a surprise.

The Giants had a rather rough time of it when they won from the Tigers in Brooklyn early in the season, 14 to 7. It is conceivable that a rebounding Flatbush outfit will turn the tables on the Polo Grounds combination.

The series between the Tigers and the Giants always has been a robust and thrilling one. The football rivalry has not been one whit less dramatic than that between the Giants and the Dodgers in baseball.

The New York club has taken four straight from the Brooklyn football team. The Tigers last won in the first meeting of 1942, by 17 to 7. Don't miss the November 26 battle on the Manhattan bank of the Harlem!

Brooklyn Going After Third Triumph Over Washington

ANDY FARKAS

SAMMY BAUGH

COMPETITION between the Washington Redskins and the Brooklyn club in the National League has not been too sweet in so far as the Flatbush outfit has been concerned. The Redskins first broke in as the Boston club, but with failures at the box office, George Marshall shifted his franchise to the capital, where his success has been phenomenal.

The Brooklyn-Washington series was started in 1937, and in 15 games, has produced only two victories for the Flatbush squad. Twice it got a tie.

The first Brooklyn success against the Redskins was achieved in the second meeting of 1940, 16 to 14. The second Brooklyn victory came in 1941, 13 to 7.

Since then Washington has run off five straight against Brooklyn.

The Tigers made a marvelous showing in their first engagement with the Redskins this Fall, in Washington. The Redskins won by 17 to 14, but it was a tough battle all the way. The Tigers went back to Brooklyn with the feeling that, on the face of results in that game, they were just as good as Marshall's outfit.

Home Schedule of Brooklyn Club Completed for Season

GEORGE DOHERTY

BILL BROWN

THE schedule of the National Football League for the rest of the campaign shows that the Brooklyn club has completed its Ebbets Field commitments, and from now on will operate on alien fields.

The Tigers have three more contests, in Boston, New York and Philadelphia. The engagement in New York is of special interest.

The championship season of the National League is to end Sunday, December 10, which will bring the playoff on December 17, on the field of the Eastern contender. It will be recollected that in 1943, the playoff took place at Wrigley Field in Chicago, with a 41 to 21 triumph for the Bears over the Redskins.

For Brooklyn football fans, interest in the rest of the Tigers' schedule doubtless will be concentrated in the visit to the banks of the Harlem.
