THIS IS PAUL GOVERNALI DAY-BRONX PROUD OF GRIDIRON HERO

THIS is Paul Governali Day here at the Polo Grounds. This is the afternoon picked by the Bronx for the laudable purpose of acclaiming its foremost gridiron hero. Brooklyn, which developed Sid Luckman at Erasmus Hall and then saw him become a great passer at Columbia, is no more ecstatic over him than the good old Bronx is over Governali.

Like Luckman, Governali grew up in New York high school football, with Evander Childs in the Bronx. Like Luckman, Governali became a college luminary under the astute Lou Little, at Columbia. And now, like Luckman, Governali is one of the standout passers of the National Governali Day was thought of first by Mike Arlen, football coach at Evander Childs. He was seconded enthusiastically by Frank Tubridy, gridiron mentor at that school when Paul was a student there.

They saw, in this Governali Day idea, not only a chance to do honor to the greatest football player who had come out of their school, but an opportunity to spark New York high school football in general.

It isn't just New York, the Bronx, and Evander Childs which combine with the football fans of the Polo Grounds to do honor to Pitching Paul.

The United States Marines are represented here by a color guard and a bugle corps. Governali served with the Devil Dogs during the war. Governali played football for the Marines with the famous El Toro outfit.

Governali Day is the result of a lot of earnest work by a committee headed by Justice Charles Loreto, who is president of the Columbus Alli-

GIANTS AT POLO GROUNDS ON NEXT TWO SUNDAYS

Today's battle with the Green Bay Packers opens the last stand at home for the Giants. They have games at the Polo Grounds the next two Sundays. Next Sunday the high-flying Chicago Cardinals bring their celebrated "dream backfield" to town. Then, on Dec. 7, in their 1947 home finale, the Giants will have their traditional battle with the Washington Redskins. The famous Redskin Marching Band will provide extracurricular entertainment.

Paul Governali

Little and Dr. Hyman Alperin, principal of the Evander Childs High School.

With them are New City Council President Vincent Impellitieri, Comptroller, Lazarus Joseph, Mal Boettcher, representing the Kiwanis Club; William Boyland, of the Bronx Real Estate Board; Postmaster Al Goldman, Ben Nichols, Judge Henry Stackel, Tom Tozzi, of the Lions; Al Vitale, from the Elks; Jack Lavelle, of the Catholic Youth Organization, and Bert Gumpert, of the Bronx Home News.

Of course, this is an especially big day for Little, who, having coached both Luckman and Governali, holds a proud position apart from the fact that he has had a brilliant season with his Army-conquering Lions. Continuing his amazing success with passers born and reared in New York, Little has developed yet another standout in Gene Rossides, who has another season with Columbia.

Governali never should have played pro football anywhere but in New York, with the Giants. However, the luck of the draw sent the passer to Boston. The Giants were very fortunate to be able to make a deal for his acquisition this season. It will be recollected that Bill Paschal and the future rights to George Connor went to the Yanks in that transaction.

New York now honors one of New York's own, Pitching Paul Governali!

GORDON PASCHKA GIANT OF WEEK; WENT OVER AGAINST STEELERS

GORDON PASCHKA

THE Giant of the Week is the hard-hitting rookie fullback, Gordon Paschka. It was Paschka who gave the New York club its touchdown in the thrilling battle at Pittsburgh. It was Paschka who made it possible for the Giants to go into that last quarter with a 7 to 3 lead, and high hopes of a triumph.

Soon after the second half kickoff, Paschka cracked over from the two-yard mark and, when Ken Strong kicked the extra point, Pittsburgh appeared to be in a bad way.

The sequence of developments which led to the touchdown started with a pass by Johnny Clement of the Steelers. The New York line charged in hard and Clement's toss was hurried.

As the ball flew wildly from his hands out toward the right, it was picked off by Big Jim White, who ran from the Pittsburgh 35 to the 19.

Here Paul Governali came through with a gorgeous pass to Howie Livingston, gaining 17 yards and putting the Giants on the two, from where Paschka made his touchdown plunge.

The touchdown looked especially vital because, up to that point, Pittsburgh had been able to score only with a first-quarter goal from placement by Joe Glamp, from the 12 yard mark.

It was Pittsburgh by 3-0 at the end of the

It was Pittsburgh by 3-0 at the end of the quarter, Pittsburgh by 3-0 at the end of the half, New York by 7 to 3 at the close of the third period, and it looked as if Steve Owen's hard-working but luckless outfit would make it, at last. But the breaks again would not go with the Polo Grounders in this most luckless campaign.

With only 3 min. 29 sec. of the game left, the Giants had that 7 to 3 decision in their fists. Then things began to hit, and it was 24-7 when the battle closed.

This is Pashka's first season with the New York club. He came into pro football from the University of Minnesota, where he was a guard. Owen decided to make a fullback out of the Gopher and sent him to Jersey City to learn his new chores. He returned in 1947 ready for the call. With the Jersey Giants, Paschka led the American League with 515 yards in 76 rushes, a fine average of close to seven yards.

Paschka hails from Anoka, Minn. He is one of the most finely developed physical specimens in the National League, being cut from the pattern of Bronco Nagurski.

After Paschka had scored his touchdown against the Steelers, it looked as if he might make it a second time.

A fumble by Clement, recovered by Bob Dobelstein, gave the ball to the Giants on the Steelers' 17 yard mark. The Giant backfield hammered away to the five, and there Pittsburgh halted the advance. It was a tough game, with a lot of tough breaks for the Giants, to produce still another very tough afternoon.

Quality!

That Quality look in Rogers Peet Clothes is something more than the Quality of fine woolens.

The style-genius of the modern Rogers Peet enters into it. So does the character of our kind of tailoring.

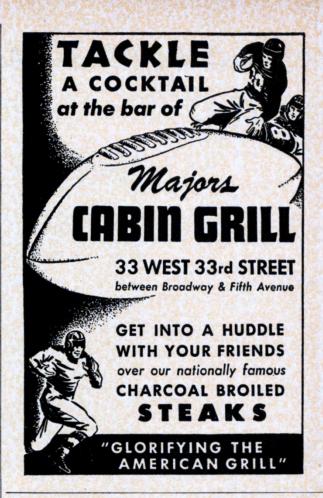

Equally important is the "perfection of fit" as we have developed it through years and years of experience.

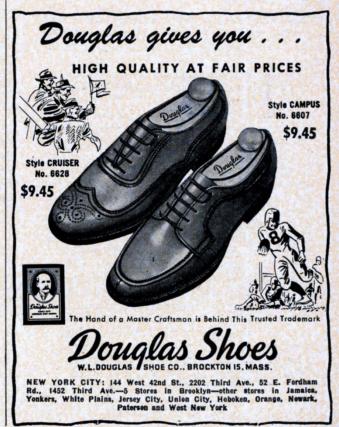

Styles for young men, and men who never grow old.

HANDY-ANDYS OF THE GIANTS

In this day of super-specialization in football, the Giants are blessed with a couple of players who don't care where they play, just so long as they are in the game.

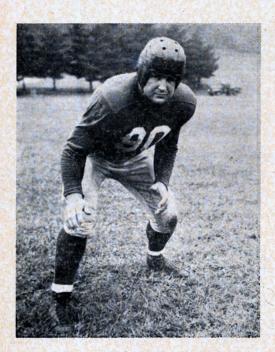

When Coach Steve Owen assembled his squad in August, Joe Sulaitis went through his paces with the ends, while Vic Carroll hit the bags with the guards and the tackles.

This afternoon, when the Giants oppose Green Bay, you'll see Sulaitis whaling away at the Packer ends from the blocking back slot and Carroll filtering through the Green Bay secondary from one of the flanks to catch those soft, fluffy long passes thrown by Paul Governali.

You don't hear too much about Sulaitis and Carroll. They are not gridiron glamor boys. But they are solid football players and, on Steve Owen's list, they both rank high. No one on the club has been doing better work this year.

One of the few men who have made the grade in professional football without college experience, Sulaitis joined the Giants in 1943, when there were precious few college players to be had. He had played at Dickinson High School in Jersey City and had messed around at sandlot football a bit.

A rugged citizen who revels in contact, Sulaitis overcame his lack of background and during 1943, 1944 and 1945 turned in better than fair performances at every backfield position and at end. Last year, with the wartime absentees back, Big

VIC CARROLL

JOE SULAITIS

Joe was temporarily shunted to Jersey City, where his all-around act was a big factor in helping the Little Giants win the American League title.

This season Sulaitis returned to the parent Giants—to stay. He was starting left end when the campaign opened and, when the need arose for a blocking back with speed, he stepped in there and continued to do an outstanding job. At one or the other of these two positions, he has started just about every game.

An ex-Nevada star who played seven years with the Washington Redskins before joining the Giants in 1944, Carroll has seen action at every line position with the Polo Grounds club. With the arrival of Governali on the scene a month ago, the canny veteran suddenly blossomed out anew as an end.

To give Paul plenty of pitching practice, Owen had all his linemen running down under passes. It soon became evident that Carroll was as good as any one the Giants had in the fine art of shaking loose from the secondary and of hanging on to the ball when it came to him.

Carroll caught the first touchdown pass thrown by Governali for the Giants, against the Pittsburgh Steelers, and by way of demonstrating that this was no accident, Vic gathered in another sixpoint toss against the Philadelphia Eagles.

It relieves a lot of worries to have a couple of handymen around like Sulaitis and Carroll.

CHICAGO CARDINALS HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Marshall Goldberg

Next Sunday brings the high-flying Cardinals of Chicago to the Polo Grounds.

This is the team with that "dream backfield" corps headed by the sensational newcomer, Charlie Trippi, Paul Christman, Pat Harder, Elmer Angsman and Marshall Goldberg.

Trippi, the prize catch of the 1947 collegiate crop, has fully lived up to the dazzling reputation he established for himself as an All-American at Georgia. Until an ankle injury slowed him down, the swift, elusive Pennsylvanian was in the thick of the fight for ground-gaining honors.

In Christman, the Cardinals have one of the top passers in the business. The ex-Missourian throw them long and short with equal accuracy and he has receivers who can get 'em in Billy Dewell and Mal Kutner.

Harder, from Wisconsin, and Angsman, from Notre Dame, are two of the hardest runners in the pro game, and in the former the Cards have one of the leading contenders for the National League scoring title.

Goldberg, another ball-carrying powerhouse and a defensive standout, is an old hand at playing in "dream backfields". That's what they also used to call the quartet he spearheaded in Pittsburgh's days of glory.

Any one who watched last year's 28-24 thriller, won by the Giants, won't want to miss the return visit of Jimmy Conzelman's colorful Cardinals next Sunday.

Washington Redskins Will Help Giants End Local Chores

THE always colorful and never uninteresting Washington Redskins will help the Giants close their home season at the Polo Grounds on Sunday, December 7. The Chicago Cardinals, who believe they can win the professional title, will be here next Sunday, and then come Samuel Baugh and Co. The Giants close in Los Angeles on December 14.

The Redskins have had their troubles this year, with half a dozen setbacks. However, with the great Baugh pitching and such backs as Dick Todd, the Texas Tornado; Sal Rosato, former Villanova hero; Eddie Saenz, from Southern California, Dick Poillon, from Canisius and Valley Stream, L. I.; Bobby Nussbaumer, from Michigan, Turk Edwards' outfit can kick up a fuss against any opposition.

Baugh continues to be as great an attraction as there is in professional football. The veteran from TCU is thirty-three and has been playing for the Rekskins since 1937. But he still is strong and fast, accurate and formidable, and having one of his better seasons despite the fact that the Redskins have not been consistent.

Edwards has a good line, with Don Avery and Doug Turley starting at the ends, Fred Boensch and Jim Peebles, converted wing, at the tackles, Johnny Steber and Harry Harris at the guards, and Al Demao at centre.

Edwards has perhaps the youngest squad in the league, as his roster shows no fewer than 28 rookies.

Baugh gave a great exhibition only last Sunday, when the Redskins dropped a 38 to 21 decision to Detroit.

DICK TODD

SAMMY BAUGH

Slingin' Samuel threw 31 passes and connected 20 times, for 174 yards. Washington got 258 yards through the air and yet failed to prevent the Lions' first victory over them, in seven efforts.

The Giants dropped a very tough early season game to the Redskins in Washington.

In 1947, Washington took the Giants in their first meeting, 24 to 14. But in the second engagement, Steve Owen's outfit ripped the Redskins, 31 to 0.

FOR A WORTHY CAUSE

There are many world famous men of medicine: Walter Reed, the conqueror of yellow fever; William C. Gorgas, whose achievements in sanitation made possible the Panama Canal; Joseph Goldberger who discovered the cause of pellagra and a host of others have established their mark in terms of human values. They were pioneers in the field of preventive medicine; they helped to raise the standards of human health throughout the world.

These men, and the one out of every six doctors entering practice in greater New York, received their training at the College of Medicine, which is a central unit in the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

Founded on a tradition of one hundred years of public service, this will be, on completion, one of the great medical centers of the world. It seems appropriate, indeed, that this Medical Center, which is to occupy a nine-block area on the east side of Manhattan, is to be a neighbor of the new home of the United Nations, an institute also pioneering in preventive measures!

You can "Help Your Doctor Help You" by contributing to the $15,575,000 fund needed to complete the new University section of the

FAMOUS REDSKIN MARCHING BAND HERE WITH WASHINGTON DEC. 7

Besides the incomporable Sammy Baugh, greatest passer of them all, the Washington Redskins will bring their famous marching band to the Polo Grounds on Dec. 7.

Maybe, some years, you can prod a grudging admission from a Redskin fan that his team isn't, perhaps, the very best in the whole world, but you'll never get him to say the Redskin Marching Band isn't the "bess' ban' in the lan'."

It's composed of volunteers of all sizes and ages—printers, plumbers, sheet metal workers; mechanics, painters, electrical engineers; students, bookbinders, and, oh, yes, of course, even musicians. There are father-son, brother-brother, nephew-uncle combinations.

It all started back in '37. A few days before the second game, a milk company employes' band asked permission to parade at home games. For the rest of the season, these musical milkmen played to their hearts' content . . . and to the fans' delight.

Before the following season, Screen Star Corinne Griffith had written lyrics to "Hail to the Redskins!", Maestro Barnee Breeskin had written the music, the Redskins had rented Indian costumes . . . and the band played on!

It has been playing ever since. It has marched up Broadway at the head of 15,000 fans. And it has played alongside Waring, Whiteman and the Philharmonic in the Philadelphia Inquirer's Music Festival. It has entertained at games in Pittsburgh, Boston, Baltimore, Cleveland, Norfolk, Philadelphia and New York.

The organization is military-like. At the head is Chief Richard Vincour, former Navy bandleader. Each marching line is a unit, with a chief who is responsible for his unit's ability and discipline. The band's own arranger carefully times his scores to 90 seconds for time-outs. The band's own librarian has on file some 200 arrangements, ranging from "Hold That Tiger!" to "Poor Butterfly."

Wardrobe men, who care for the $20,000 worth of costumes, know their business so well that the bandsmen can file through one end of a box car in street clothes and out the other end in Indian get-up—all within 25 minutes!

The band's drum majors have diagrams of scores of maneuvers, man-by-man and step-by-step, and, in one rehearsal, can whip the band into any design from a shamrock to a Christmas tree.

The band has its own secretary, its own letterheads and its own esprit de corps. It rehearses once every week and last season, despite weather, illness, business demands and domestic problems, compiled an astounding attendance record of 94 percent!

Between Baugh and the band, there'll be a hot time at the Polo Grounds a week from next Sunday.

STEELERS AND CARDINALS SHAPE UP AS OPPONENTS IN NATIONAL LEAGUE PLAYOFF

OF COURSE, there is many a slip twixt the standings of one Sunday and the intersectional playoff of the National League. But the way things shape up today, the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Chicago Cardinals will meet in the battle for the title.

Much depends on the way today's contests go. The Steelers are up against the tough Chicago Bears. The Cardinals are meeting the Redskins in Washington. Things could happen. They certainly have been happening in the circuit this season.

The Steelers, with seven won and two lost, top the Eastern division by a one victory margin over the Philadelphia Eagles. The sectional title lies between them, since no other club in the Eastern half has won more than two games.

In the West, the Cardinals show seven and one and the Bears, six and two. The Packers are third with four victories. Then come Los Angeles and Detroit.

In the matter of attack, the standout club in the National League is the Chicago Bear outfit, with Sid Luckman still chucking them in his old form. The Bears have piled up 245 points.

The best defensive club in the circuit is the Cardinal gang from Chicago, under the erudite Jimmy Conzelman. His team has allowed only 109 points. The second best defensive club is Green Bay, which came into the Polo Grounds today with a record of only 134 points against it.

The Cardinals had a close call last Sunday, when they beat the Packers by only one point. The Steelers had their hands full with the Giants until very late in their battle.

PACKERS LEAD GIANTS IN ALL-TIME SERIES

Over the years the Giants have done better than hold their own against most of their National League opponents. Today, in the Green Bay Packers, they will be facing one of the few teams that have been able to gain an edge over them.

The records of the all-time series between the clubs, which clashed for the first time back in 1928, show twelve victories for the Packers, eleven for the Giants and one tie. Two of their battles were play-offs for the National League championship. In title competition, the teams broke even, the Giants won, 23-17, in 1938 and the Packers retaliated, 27-0, the following year.

It has been touch-and-go right from the start between the Giants and Packers. Their game has built up into one of the big events on the professional football calendar. The total points scored by the teams give an idea of how well matched they have been over the years. In twenty-four games, Green Bay has piled up 308 points to 261 for New York. This breaks down to an average margin of four points a game. That's how close it has been.

The vagaries of the National League's rotating schedules kept the Packers away from the Polo Grounds last year. They return today as the big, bold, bad Packers of old, once more a prime contender for the Western Division title. For rugged, thrilling football you can't beat a game between the Giants and the Packers.
