CHARLEY CONERLY

JIM PATTON

Hail to the Giants!

OUR Giant Killers, who committed classic murder on the Browns' all-winning record in Cleveland last Sunday, now direct their homicidal tendencies at the National League's lone remaining unbeaten team—the Baltimore Colts. Here's hoping the knife is sharp, the gun is true, the cord is strong and the poison is deadly!

They all were before that huge crowd in Cleveland. The 21-17 victory over the Browns must be analyzed as one of the great triumphs in Giant history. To borrow an old saw, the final score told only part of the story.

In no game this season did the Giants dominate an opponent as they dominated the "invincible" Browns. Our boys made 22 first downs to Cleveland's 11, out-gained football's "greatest offensive team ever" from scrimmage by 284 yards to 201 and had equally decisive advantages in other significant departments.

Hats off to Head Coach Jim Lee Howell and his staff of Vin Lombardi, Tom Landry, Johnny Dell Isola and Ken Kavanaugh for a magnificent job of preparation! And hats off to a gallant fighting Giant team that proved that it still is one of the superior forces in football's rough, tough big league!

The victory over Cleveland was the product of such a well-coordinated team effort that one hesitates to single out heroes. However, a few observations can be made with justice.

Fans who have let their voices rise against Charley Conerly on his rare bad days owe this great, game quarterback a rousing ovation.

Without a supporting replacement against a big, rough team committed to storming him relentlessly, Chuck stuck by his guns unflinchingly.

Not only did Conerly throw three touchdown passes, two of them picture pitches to closely-covered receivers, and maintain second-half ball-possession to an extent that the Browns got to run only 18 plays.

Charley also—and this is a key to a big man's character—called his own signal for the game's last, clock-killing play, although battered and bruised, he knew the desperate Browns would be belting extra hard.

Mel Triplett, a bucking, blocking terror; Alex Webster, with two touchdown receptions and a dazzling run for the winning score on the second, the fleet rookies Phil King and Don Maynard; big Bob Schnelker at end and a line that blocked savagely throughout were also true Giants on attack.

It was a defensive victory, too, also teamwise. Sam Huff's vigilant coverage all but neutralized Jimmy Brown. Andy Robustelli and his fellow rush-liners harried Milt Plum unflaggingly and Jim Patton, in another great game, picked off two passes. The linebackers and the halfbacks contained fleet Bobby Mitchell outside. In short, every man did his job.

Cliff Livingston—Kick-Blocker

Rival Place-Kickers and Punters Have Learned to Hate this Giant

IN this age of specialization in pro football, the Giants' Cliff Livingston is unique. His esoteric specialty is blocking kicks.

During five seasons of service with the Giants, the handsome Californian has smothered at least a dozen punts and place-kicks before they fairly had left the kicker's toe.

As recently as three weeks ago, Livingston gave a demonstration of his genius in this respect. In the game against the Cardinals, he stormed in to block Bobby Joe Conrad's attempt for an extra point.

It's a wonder Cliff doesn't get expelled from the pro players' union. You just aren't supposed to block kicks in football's big league, where place-kickers never miss and punters take station a country mile behind their scrimmage line.

However, a challenge of this type simply screams for acceptance to a fellow of Livingston's stripe. Cliff delights in accepting challenges.

Last season, he appeared on the quiz program "Name That Tune" and won more than $10,000. Don't ever try to pass him on the open road. He'll just push the throttle of his Mercedes Benz 300SL down to the floorboard and feed you an acrid charge of exhaust smoke. He's also about to challenge Hollywood and white flags have begun to flutter in several leading studios.

Football presents other chal-

lenges to Livingston besides blocking kicks and, every gauntlet that has been flung, he has joyously scooped up. No Giant since Joe Sulaitis has served the Giants so well in so many different capacities.

"The Kick-Blocker," as his teammates have come to call him, never has been an official regular, unless you choose to accede him first-string status on the basis of his mandatory membership on the so-called "suicide teams" that take

*His Older Brother, Howie,
Was a Giant Defensive Stalwart Before Him*

the field for and against kick-offs and punts.

However, though he may not often start, Livingston generally winds up a season having played as many minutes as most regulars.

He's likely to bob up anywhere in the line-up—at any one of the three line-backing positions, at defensive halfback, at offensive end or wherever circumstances and Coach Jim Lee Howell dictate.

There's always room on a football team for a big, strong, fast guy who likes to block, tackle and mix it. That description fits Livingston to a T.

The Giants' "one-man bench," who played his college football at U. C. L. A., was signed by the Giants as a free agent in 1954 on the strength of his showing on the Fort Ord team while he was in military service.

Acquisitive eyes in the Giant front office had been following him for some time on advice from a respected source.

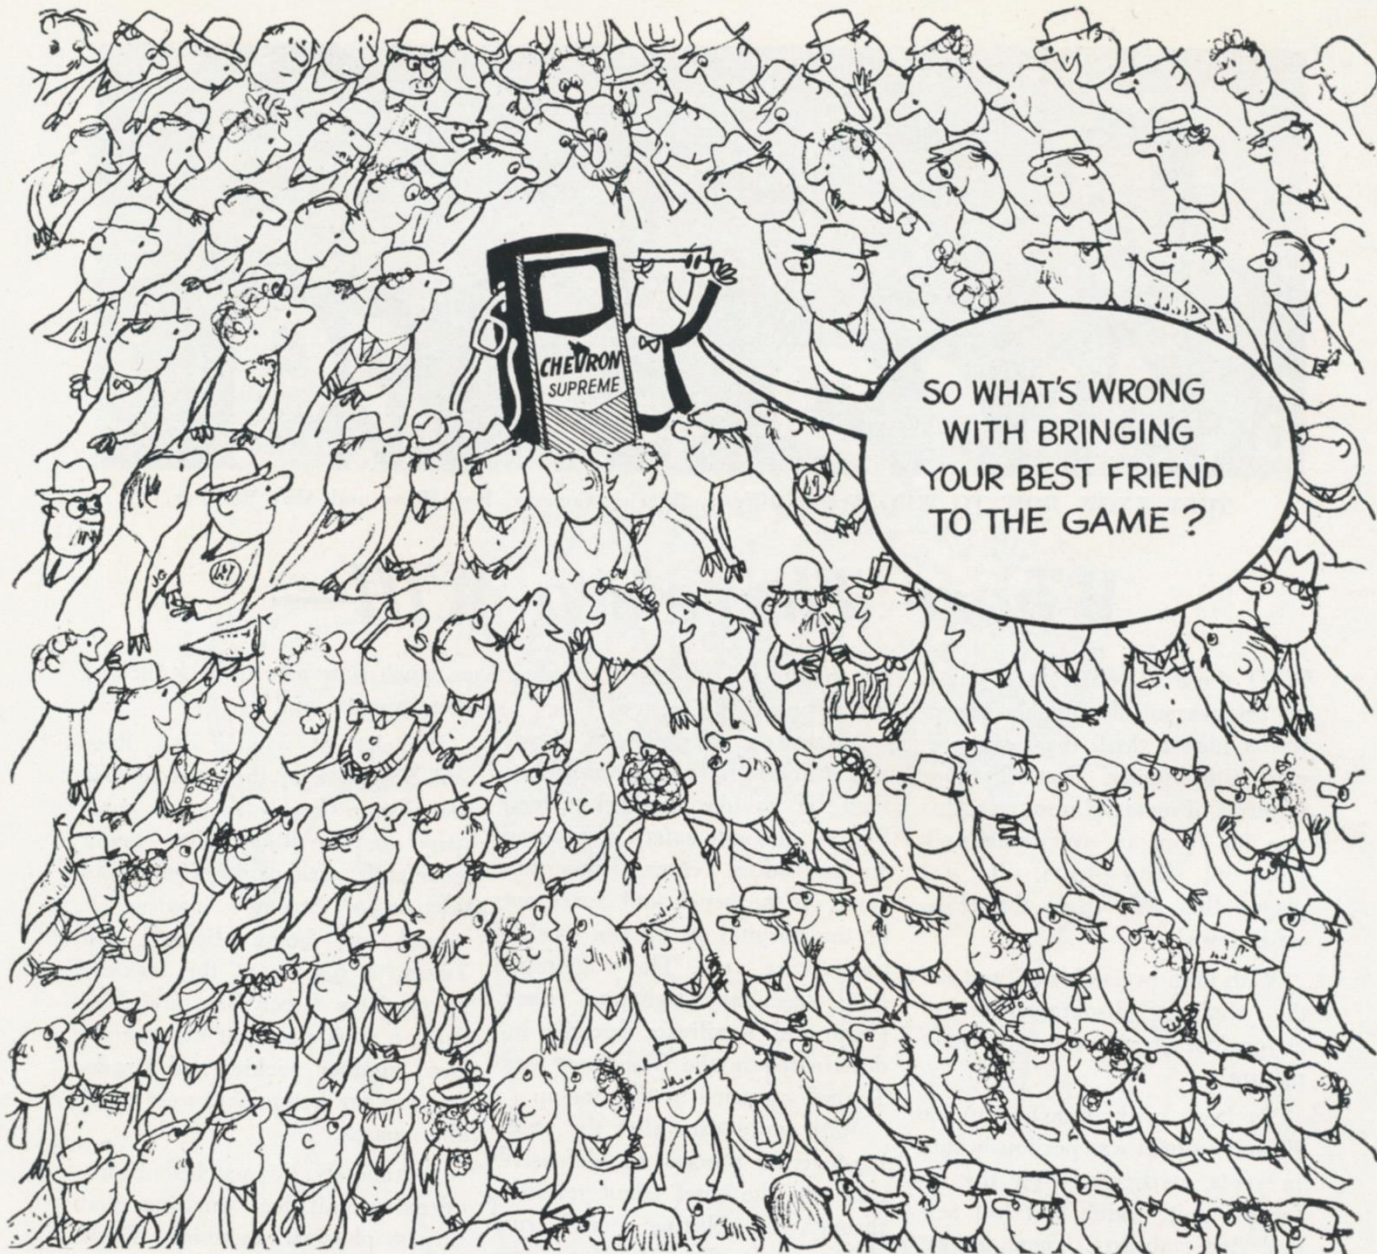

The source: Howie Livingston, Cliff's older brother, who as a Giant defensive back once held the incomparable Don Hutson to no catches in an entire game.

"If you think I did a fairly good job," wrote Howie to the Giants when Cliff was just a strippling, "Just wait until you see my kid brother."

At the first opportunity, the Giants looked. They liked what they saw and the Cliff view continues as a scenic item in the over-all Giant picture.

Al Barry

Al Barry (68), obtained from the Packers in a pre-season trade, has done a splendid job for the Giants at guard, a position dogged by injuries this year. This is the 235-pound USC graduate's third pro season. He was drafted by Green Bay in '53 but stayed an extra year in college and put in a service hitch before joining them.

Ray Wietecha

Ray Wietecha (55), who played half a dozen positions well for the Giants as a rookie in 1953, was installed as offensive center the following year and has since been a fixture there ever since. The Giants rate him as the best pivotman in the NFL. At Northwestern, Ray also was an outstanding baseball player.

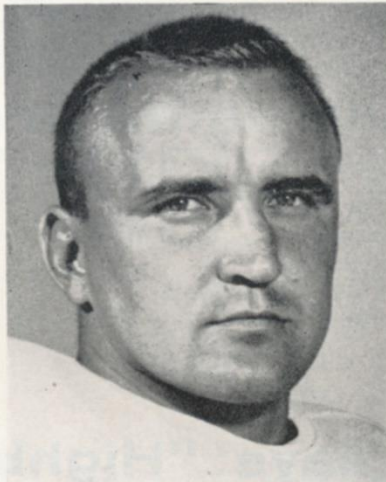

Billy Lott

Billy Lott (22). This fleet, nifty 195-pound halfback, a No. 6 choice in last winter's draft, has been showing rare rookie poise on both offense and defense. Hailing from Ole Miss doesn't hurt Billy's chances. That's the school that started Charley Conerly, Jim Patton and the various Pooles on the road to Giant glory.

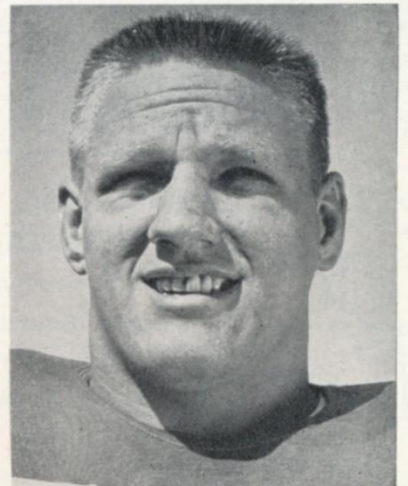

Ed Hughes

Ed Hughes (48), who played his college football for the U. of Tulsa, joined the Giants in 1956 after having put in a couple of seasons with the Los Angeles Rams. Fast afoot and a sure tackler who has the knack of being in the right place at the right time, he has been a valuable addition to the defensive secondary.

Bob Mischak

Bob Mischak (62), a crack end for Army a few years back, has bobbed up as an offensive guard with the Giants and looks like a good one. A first-year pro but technically not a rookie since he trained briefly with the Browns in 1957 after finishing his service hitch. Has good speed and, at 230 pounds, the power to make his blocks stick.

Jim Katcavage

At Dayton University, Jim Katcavage (75) did not have much chance to capture the spotlight. But Giant scouts had him tabbed as a great prospect. A No. 4 draft choice in 1956, he was a key rushliner on the championship team of that year. A rugged 230-pounder who likes to mix it, he does a capable job anywhere up front, on defense or offense.

-- Guess which drink is better for you? --

Fizzless highball

1. Big feature, easy to make. Turn the tap, fill the glass. No longer socially acceptable, lacking in good taste.

2. What happened to the flavor of the liquor?
A lifeless, bland drink.

3. Flat'er than a pancake!
Wishy-washy...
Your very best bet...
start afresh.

4. Sparkling mixers save you money and trouble. Every drink tastes great... better for you too.

Sparkling highball

1. Big feature... delectable taste. Costs more than tap water... but worth 5 times as much... Why?

2. Makes a lively drink every time. Makes any liquor taste terrific!

3. The drink comes alive with flavor. Money saving... You bet! Why?

4. No wasted drinks... no disappointed drinkers. You're traveling first class with Canada Dry Mixers.

Research says: "Highballs with sparkling mixers are better for you"

Here's why—It's the lively bubbles!

- 1. They speed the liquid through your system 80% faster than plain water.
- 2. They aid your digestion.
- 3. They curb unpleasant aftereffects.

Only Canada Dry Mixers have exclusive "Pin-Point Carbonation"—livelier, longer-lasting bubbles. Also superior flavor, from secret formulas, improve the taste of any liquor.

Redskins Here on November 23

The Giants go to Pittsburgh (and we mean Pittsburgh this time) next Sunday for a return game with the Steelers. Then, two weeks from today, they will return to the Stadium to meet their old rivals—the Washington Redskins.

Most of you undoubtedly watched the first 1958 game between the Giants and the Redskins on television. It was a real thriller, as you will recall, that saw the Giants stage a scorching rally in the second half to win, 21-14.

More of the same can be expected on Nov. 23 when Eddie

JIM PODOLEY

EDDIE LE BARON

LeBaron and Company invade New York on their mission of vengeance. The 'Skins will be out for blood—you can bet on that.

One of the most improved teams in the league, the 'Skins also are one of the most interesting to watch. LeBaron alone is worth the price of admission. The pint-sized Washington quarterback has the nerve of a burglar, as they say.

In support of LeBaron, the 'Skins have a riproaring collection of fast, elusive running backs.

Jim Podoley, Don Bosseler and Ed Sutton, last year's stellar trio, have been joined by Johnny Olszewski, of Cardinal fame.

Other bright feathers in the Redskin war bonnet are John Carson, a mercurial pass-receiving end; Chuck Drazenovich, a bruising middle line-backer; Gene Brito, who has been paired with the Giants' Andy Robustelli as All-League defensive end the last few years, and Sam Baker, a long-range punter and place-kicker.

Don't miss the Giants-Redskins game! It should be a dilly!

Jottings on the Giants

The Baltimore Colts will be here in force. Besides a very fine football team, they are bringing along a couple of trainloads of fans and the justly famed Baltimore Colts marching band. They take their pro football seriously in Baltimore. There's a real rah-rah touch to the Colts, who have their own cheerleaders and everything.

A number of Giant players plan to remain in New York the year round and will be available for post-season employment. There are a lot of talented young men on the New York roster and anyone who's interested in a hustling salesman, a personable public relations representative or an unafraid-of-work specialist in some other line will do well to investigate the possibility of hiring a Giant. Please direct inquiries to the Giant office, 10 Columbus Circle, New York 19, N. Y., JU 2-7272.

Before today's game, Roosevelt Brown will receive a special award from the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society for being the outstanding Giant performer in the game with the Cardinals here a few weeks back. . . . Starting with today's game, the Longines-Wittener Watch Company will present watches to the Giants who do the best jobs on offense and defense in games at the Stadium.

Listen to the "Giant Radio Huddle," a lively inside-football show that goes on the air via CBS each Thursday night at 10 P.M. . . . Another "must" program for pro football fans is Pro Football Highlights on WPIX-TV, Channel 11, at 10 P.M. Tuesdays. Film clips of the key plays of the NFL games of the previous Sunday are shown with explanatory narrative.

If you'd like to meet the Giants close-up, sign up for the Section Five Club dinner in honor of Coach Jim Lee Howell. All the Giant players, coaches and officials will attend this gala affair at the Concourse Plaza Hotel on Nov. 30, after the return game with the Philadelphia Eagles. Tickets may be obtained at Section Five Club headquarters in Room 229 of the Concourse Plaza.

Don Heinrich

Don Heinrich (11), who set all manner of passing records at the U. of Washington in 1950-52, has been a highly effective lead-off quarterback for the Giants. A master tactician and superb ball-handler, he has a gift for finding weak spots in opposing defenses. By using him alternately with Charley Conerly, the Giants get an extra lift on attack.

Kyle Rote

Kyle Rote (44), offensive captain of the Giants, is sharper than ever in his eighth pro season. An All-America half-back at SMU, Kyle was a bonus choice in the 1951 draft. When knee injuries cut his ball-carrying effectiveness, he shifted to end and now ranks as one of the best. Through 1957, he had caught 168 passes for 2636 yards and 28 TDs.

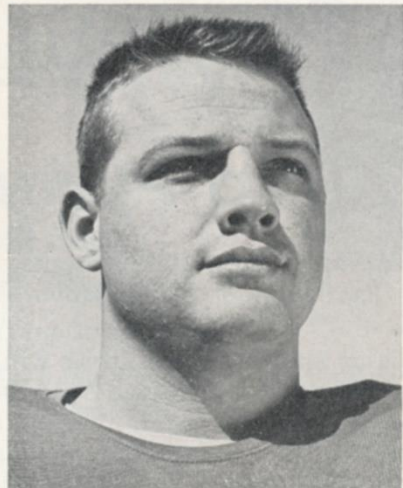

Roosevelt Brown

Roosevelt Brown (79) qualifies as one of pro football's greatest "finds." A speculative No. 27 draft choice in 1953, the big Morgan State graduate crashed the Giant line-up as rookie and has developed into the NFL's top-rated offensive tackle, a fleet 245-pounder, he's a lethal blocker. Also reinforces the defensive on goal line stands.

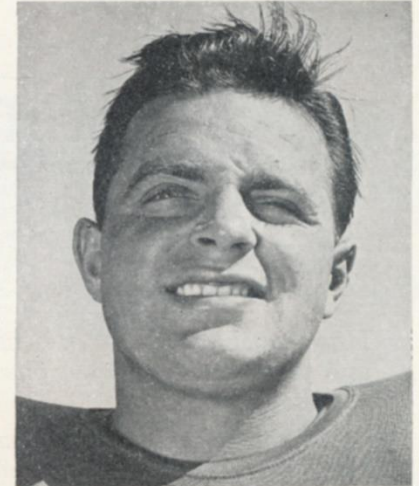

Andy Robustelli

Andy Robustelli (81), perennial All-Pro end, shifted allegiance from the Rams to the Giants in 1956 in order to be closer to his Stamford, Conn., home. A big, bruising ruction-raiser who terrorizes rival passers, he gave the Giants a big boost toward their 1956 world title and, in his eighth pro season, looks just as good as ever.

Sam Huff

Robert Lee Huff (70), who answers more readily to Sam, took over as the Giants' middle-linebacker as a rookie in 1956. Nobody, foe or friend, has been able to budge him out of the job since. The baby-faced 230-pound West Virginian, who played tackle in college, is a rock-and-sock play-wrecker and an uncanny ball hawk.

Harland Sware

Harland Sware (84), acquired from the Los Angeles Rams in a 1954 trade, has been a key defense player for the Giants ever since. His darting sallies into rival backfields from his right line-backer post has provided many a bright moment for Giant fans. Washington State was his school.

THE GIANT OF TROTTING

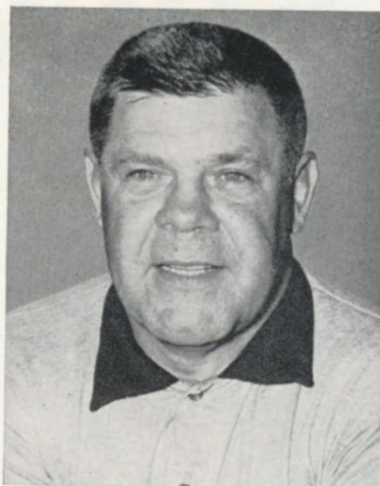

Looking Over the Colts

COLORFUL is the name for the frisky Colts of Baltimore. There may be better teams in the rough-tough National League (although you will get heated arguments on that score in the Crab Cake Capital). Few are more interesting.

After three years of painstaking, and sometimes painful, building effort, Weeb Ewbank appears to have hit upon a blend of personnel that not only is capable of playing winning football but also has the knack of turning that trick in exciting fashion.

The Colts have one of the genuinely explosive teams of a league that is packed with offensive dynamite.

Johnny Unitas, the quarterback they salvaged from the junk heap a couple of years ago when George Shaw, who now is sound again, suffered a knee-injury, has been a sensational passer. Johnny was hurt last Sunday, so George may take over today. The Giants can take no comfort in this development.

WEEB EW BANK

In support of their rubber-armed flingers, the Colts have a collection of thoroughbred runners. Lenny Moore, the former Penn State will-o'-the-wisp; L. G. (Long Gone) Dupre, from Baylor, and the appropriately named Alan (The Horse) Ameche all have getaway speed and staying power.

Joining them in the well-stocked Ewbank stable this season is a mercurial rookie flyer from Louisville named Leonard Lyles. Every time you pick up a newspaper, it seems, he's in the headlines for returning a kick-off 100 yards for a touchdown.

Ray Berry, Jim Mutscheller and Art DiCarlo are fleet, shifty ends who field Unita's and Shaw's passes with the aplomb of Willie Mays. And a hulking North Dakotan named Steve Myhra has joined Bert Rechichar as a field goal-kicking threat.

Defensively, the Colts also pack a heavy kick. Their four-man frontal firing line includes Gino Marchetti; Art Donovan, a perennial All-League tackle; the monstrous Gene (Big Daddy) Lipscomb, acquired a couple of years ago from the Los Angeles Rams, and Don Joyce.

Bill Pellington, Don Shinnick and Leo Sanford are a formidable trio of line-backers and a deep secondary that features Milt Davis and Carl Taseff has been fortified by the addition of Ray Brown, one of 1957's foremost college stars at Ole Miss.

Facing a team like this, a week after playing the Browns, is quite an assignment for the Giants.

Giant-Colt Series

Because of the geographical quirk whereby Baltimore was assigned to the Western Division on the reorganization of the National League a few years back, the Giants and Colts have met only twice before.

They broke even in their two previous games. The Colts won 20-14 in a riotous contest at Baltimore in 1954. The Giants evened the count, 17-7, at the Polo Grounds the following year.

Six Giants played in last January's Pro Bowl game. They were Em Tunnell, Roosevelt Brown, Jack Stroud, Ray Wietecha, Frank Gifford and Andy Robustelli. Tunnell has played in all seven Pro Bowl games.

Among the former Giant players who are distinguishing themselves as college coaches are Art (Pappy) Lewis at West Virginia, John McLaughry at Amherst, Paul Governali at San Diego State and Frank Reagan at Villanova. Jim Tatum of Oklahoma, Maryland and North Carolina fame, also put in some time with the Giants.

Giants, have rewritten a lot of lines in the book of Giant records.

However, there still are a number of marks that have resisted assault. For instance: Mel Hein's fifteen seasons remains the longevity record for a player... Ken Strong's 351 points, Eddie Price's 3292 yards gained and Ben Agajanian's 157 extra points and 46 field goals are other hold-over career records.

Single-season marks that date back to previous Giant player generations include Gene Roberts' 102 points of 1949; Agajanian's 13 field goals of 1954; Price's 971 yards gained of 1951; the 10 touchdown passes caught by Frank Liebel in 1945 and Bill Swiacki in 1948 and the 11 interceptions by Otto Schnellbacher in 1951.

Giant Blackboard: About "Automatics"

From time to time in accounts of football games, you hear a lot about "automatics." They were a big part of the story of the last Giant home game against the Steelers, when Don Heinrich's skillful use of them contributed heavily to the Giant victory.

"Automatic" is the football trade name for the extemporaneous changing by the quarterback on the line of the play he had called in the huddle.

The "automatic" is designed primarily to counter defensive overloading that threatens the effectiveness of the original play.

In modern football, most teams change defenses from play to play. The offensive quarterback has no sure way of knowing in advance what particular defense he must attack at any given time.

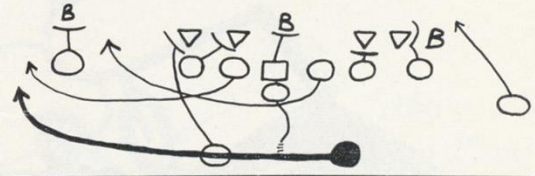

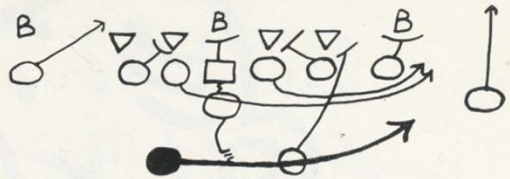

From the habit patterns indicated in scouting reports and by studying films of previous games, he may have a fair idea of what to expect.

However, it's too easy to get caught in the switches to proceed inflexibly with any plan.

So, on taking his position under center, the first thing a quarterback does is to inspect the defense.

If he judges that the deployment presents abnormal obstacles to the play he had first called, he signals an "automatic" that he believes has a better chance against the defense he is facing.

It's part of a team's offensive organization to have several "automatics" ready for use. The word as to the alternative play to be run is passed by the barking of a key number, letter, color or even by a change in intonation as the quarterback rattles off his signals.

The accompanying diagrams give a rough idea as to how an "automatic" might work. The Giant quarterback has called for a sweep to the right from balanced formation. The expectation had been that the defense would line up and that the play would be run as shown in the top diagram.

On the line, the quarterback discovers that the defense has overshifted to the side to which the play was to have been run (note in the lower diagram how the defensive left tackle and end are playing wide to the left).

So an "automatic," sending the same type of sweep to the left against less concentrated defensive opposition, is called.

MOON

Rare is the whiskey of such character and savor that it unfailingly offers complete and perfect pleasure. And if this triumph won't quite change the stars in their courses or shade a gold moon blue, at least it can win more advocates than any other whiskey in the world's history. It can . . . and did. Its name is 7 Crown.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE BUT HERE IT IS!

PUFF BY PUFF...

TODAY'S L&M GIVES YOU...

Less tars & More taste

DON'T SETTLE FOR ONE WITHOUT THE OTHER!

Change to L&M and get 'em both. Yes, today's L&M gives you the unbeatable combination of less tars and more taste! L&M's taste is so full and rich... it's a rare mixture of the Southland's finest cigarette tobaccos. And you get L&M's patented* filtering process — assuring you of less tars in the smoke, puff by puff, than ever before.

"Couldn't be done, couldn't be done." Hardly anyone dreamed that 50,000,000 people would be able to enjoy a "Western"... in their own homes... on the same evening! But that's how many Americans watch "GUNSMOKE"... TV's most popular program, every Saturday on CBS-TV.

* Only L&M has U. S. patent number on the side of the pack. This patent (No. 2,805,671) covers L&M's exclusive process that electrostatically adds extra filtering fibers.
